New York ladies are about to establish a training school for nurses. Those who have charge of the Cleveland boom for 92 should attend the school.

Progress is on the wing, and hope is in the air. There is a democratic newspaper in Iowa, the Dubuque Times, that favors the Australian system of voting.

The white house is being turned into a French school. A French class of young ladies meets there twice a week for instruction. With two pianos, a French class of girls, little Ben Harrison McKey, and the seekers after office, the white house is a strange place.

Allen O. Myers declares that his present hope and immediate mission is to see that one or more millionaires go to the penitentiary from Ohio instead of to the United States senate. Mr. Myers is not in a condition to call the kettle black: but anything he can do to purify the democratic politics of Ohio will be deeply appreciated.

Word comes from Russia that George Kennan's vigorous truth-telling in the Century has so far influenced the Russian government that the practice of sending prisoners to Siberia will be abolished, though in concentrating it convicts Russia will have to house them in a most abominable fashion, worse even than the poor wretches now endure.

LIVES ABANDONED TO CRIME.

The Ohio penitentiary claims a convict who is forty years old who has spent a greater portion of the time in prison. He is a man of much more than ordinary ability, one who could command a good salary and steady employment in several occupations had he the moral character necessary to sustain even a moderate amount of manhood. But he refuses to work except when in prison, and so his life from eighteen to forty has been abandoned to crime.

The story of Frank H. Funchon's life is very much like that of the criminal in the Columbus penitentiary. He was arrested in Chicago this week on the charge of swindling a woman, and was sent to Joliet for the second time, in this case receiving a sentence of five years. He is likewise known in the criminal courts of Wisconsin. In 1867 he was committed to the industrial school for boys at Waukesha, for stealing. In 1871 he was convicted by the Brown county circuit court of larceny, and sentenced to one year's imprisonment at Waupun. In 1875 he was convicted of obtaining money under false pretences in the Fond du Lac circuit court, and received two years in the state prison. In 1877 he began his operations in Rock county, and in that year was arrested for horse stealing, and on two convictions received a sentence of ten years at Waupun. He saved his good time, returned to Rock county, and was implicated in the murder of Gustie Luckow, whose body was found in Rock river in 1884. He was arrested, and while his guilt could not be established, he was clearly the murderer of the unfortunate girl. He was tried on the charge of adultery, and sentenced to two years and nine months at Waupun.

Puncheon is now 36 years old, and has received 19 years and 9 month sentences in the state prison and the industrial school in this state, to say nothing of the months he has spent in jail in Wisconsin and Illinois, and in the Joliet penitentiary. He is an accomplished scoundrel, a thief by profession, and a painter by trade. He would rather steal and spend half of his time in prison than work for an honest living.

DEMOCRATIC WIGGLING ON THE TARIFF.

Two years ago when congress met Mr. Cleveland sent in his noted message calling attention to the "alarming circumstances" involved in "a congested national treasury and a depleted monetary condition in the business of the country." About half the message was devoted to an exhibit showing the increasing contraction of the currency through the rapid accumulation of surplus funds in the treasury and to claim that as no bonds were subject to call the administration was powerless to relieve the congestion. Mr Cleveland went to argue that only cure for the surplus evil was the lessen tariff taxes so that excessive revenues would be no longer poured into the treasury. The critical state of the treasury, he claimed, made tariff reduction necessary and unavoidable. A reduction of duties was urged primarily to ward off the danger of the surplus and as the only method by which that end could be reached. Mr. Cleveland said that it was "a condition not a theory" which confronted the country and that "the question of free trade was absolutely irrelevant.—Chicago Tribune.

It is interesting to follow Mr. Cleveland and his democratic friends in their tariff studies from the delivery of the wool message in 1887 to the writing of his acceptance letter in 1888. In the former case Mr. Cleveland was quite moderate in his free trade views. In 1888, when it was necessary to show more of a movement toward free trade, Mr. Cleveland practically took back what he said the year before about the surplus, and in his letter he was artful enough to give another reason why import duties should be largely reduced or wiped out altogether. "As long as the problem of a treasury surplus remained Cleveland used it for all it was worth, but when it was not available as a justification of tariff revision and reduction he showed his true colors, declared for free trade for the sake of free trade, and made his assault on the principle of protection itself. The free trade camel which mildly poked its nose into the tent in December had complete possession six or eight months later, and the protectionist democrats were all under its feet."

And so the democratic wiggling on the tariff question between their convention of 1884 and that of 1888, only proves that the position of the party on the subject of import duties, depends upon the necessities of the campaign. In 1884 it was neccessary to face both ways on that question in order to catch the votes of democratic protectionists and democratic free traders. In 1887 Mr. Cleveland gave wool protection a punch to see how it would effect the whole question of free trade, and being somewhat encouraged he willingly swallowed the free trade doctrine of the democratic convention of 1888. So here the party is for 1882—for practical free trade, and Mr. Cleveland will be its leader.

AMERICAN CATHOLICISM.

Intelligent observers have known for a long time, says the New York Tribune, that in the American Roman Catholic church there are two distinct schools of thought. First of all there are the conservatives, who take as little account as possible of modern thought and modern ideas and who try to make the American church a faithful transcript of European ultramontanism. They may be called trans-Atlantic churchmen. Secondly, there are the progressive Catholics, whose motto is, "An American Catholic Church for American Catholics," whose minds are open to all the better manifestations of the spirit of the age, and who are intensely desirous of making American Catholicism the best possible religious expression of social and political liberty. For convenience they may be called cis-Atlantic churchmen.

The most notiable fact about the recent Catholic celebration in Baltimore was its demonstration that the cis-Atlantic churchmen are now in the ascendency. The conservatives took only a minor part in the exercises. It was the recognized progressive leaders like Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia, and Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul, who struck the keynote of the celebration. While these men yield to none in their loyalty to the teachings of the church, they believe that the church must become a distinctively American institution. This idea was the undertone in all the important utterances of the week. But is was perhaps most perfectly expressed in the vesper sermon of Archbishop Ireland in the Cathedral as the following extract will show:—

The church of America must be of course, as Catholic as even in Jerusalem or Rome, but so far as her garments assume color from the local atmosphere she must be American. Let no one dare paint her brow with foreign tint or pin to her mantle foreign linings. There is danger in receiving large accessions of Catholics from foreign countries. God witnesses it they are welcome. I will not intrude on their personal effections and tastes, but these if foreign they shall not intrude upon the church. Americans have no longing for a church with a foreign aspect. It would wield no influence over them. In no manner could it prosper. Exotics shave never but sickly forms.

It is time to bring back the primitive gospel spirit; to go out into highways and byways, to preach on house-tops and in market-places. Erect stately churches if you will. If all are not there press the absentees to hear you beneath humble roofs. If some remain yet outside, speak to them in the streets for the public road. The time has come for "salvation armies" to penetrate the wildest thickets of thorns and briers and bring God's word to the ear of the most vile, the most ignorant and the most godless. Saving those who insists on being saved, as we are satisfied in doing is not the mission of the church. This is not the religion we need to-day, to sing lovely anthems in cathedral stalls, to wear capes of broidered gold, while no multitude throng nave or aisle and the world outside is dying of spiritual and moral starvation. Seek out men, speak to them not in stilted phrase of seventeenth century sermon style, but in burning words that go to their hearts as well as their minds. Popularize religion so far as principles permit. Into the arena priests and laymen, seek out social grievances lead in movements to heal them; peep mercifully into factories; breathe fresh air into the crowded tenement quarters of the poor, follow on the streets the crowds of vagrant children; lessen on railways and the public service Sunday work, which renders for thousands the practice of religion impossible; cry outagainst the fearful evil of intemperance which is damning hourly the bodies and souls of countless victims.,

These words, be it remembered, were uttered by one of the leading prelates of the church, on a great historic occasion, and they have therefore a profound significance. They indicate that American Catholicism has taken a new departure, and that it is gradually cutting itself loose from the old question and controversies that occupy the attention of European Catholicism. Cis-Atlantic Catholicism is looming in the horizon, and its rallying cry, "An American Catholic Church for American Catholics," will continue to wax louder and louder in the councils of this great and venerable communion.

NOT THE WHITE HORSE.

A NEW THEORY IN THE CRONIN CASE.

A New Jersey Man Says Dinan's Beast Did Not Carry Dr. Cronin to His Death.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Pat Dinan was the first witness called by the defense in the Cronin case. He swore that the white horse in the museum was his own and only white horse.

Louis Budenbender was the next witness the defense placed on the stand and his testimony was to prove an alibi for Dinan's white horse.

He said that the white horse on exhibition at a down town museum, which Mrs. Conklin claims was the animal that drove Dr. Cronin to his death, is not the beast that was driven to the Conklin residence. He said that on the evening of the 4th of May he was standing in front of the cigar store when the horse drove up. Dr. Cronin came down from up stairs. He carried a little satchel or box in his hand. As he passed across the sidewalk he turned around and spoke to a man on the sidewalk. Then the man who had driven up unhitched the horse and got into the buggy. Dr. Cronin got in, and the two drove away."

"Now, you saw the horse."

"Yes, sir."

"Had a good look at him?"

"I saw him for the fifteen minutes he stood there, and got a good look at him."

"Now what color was that horse?"

"He was a speckled gray."

Cross-examination developed the fact that while witness could describe every movement of Dr. Cronin, Frank Scanlan and the horse, he could tell nothing about any other horse or person that passed that evening.

Marshall D. Ewell, who is professor of medical jurisprudence at the Union College of Law, is a graduate of law and also of medicine; professor of meteorology at the Northwestern university, and had paid close attention to microscopy since 1884, was the next witness. This was the first expert witness introduced by the defense to offset the evidence offered by Prof. Tolman and Dr. Belfield. The subject of hair was taken up first.

Prof. Ewell said that in the present state of science there was no way by which human hair can be distinguished from the hair of animals.

"Is there any difference between the individual hairs off the head of the same person?"

"There is a great difference."

"Is the microscope a reliable means of identifying human hair?"

"No, sir. On the contrary, I think it is very misleading."

"Can it be discovered with scientific certainty by the use of the microscope whether a bunch of three hairs came from the head of a human being?"

"It can not."

"What are the little hairs or fuzz which is sometimes found on the human body?"

"Little hairs, or 'lanugo' as it is called, is the first hair that grows on the body. It is embryonic hair and has no medulla, or head. After birth this embryonic hair either falls away or becomes the mature hair."

"Would the presence of this lanugo in a clot of blood found ou the floor of a room be any indication that it was human blood?"

"It would not."

Dr. Harold M. Moyer, formerly county physician, was next called. He began, he said, the study of hair several years ago.

He said that in the present state of science there is no means by which human hair can be certainly distinguished from all other hair, nor is there any way it can be ascertained scientifically, and with definiteness, if two specimens of human hair came from the same head: nor is it possible to determine absolutely whether a specimen of blood is from a human being. The witness further said that in a case where only fifty-six corpuscles were measured he would consider the examination valueless. The witness said that a child's corpuscles are larger than an adult's. At a certain age a dog's corpuscles are exactly the same size as an adult human being, and it would be impossible to distinguish one from the other. Dr. Moyer said that blood would coagulate much quicker if dropped on cotton than if it were dropped on a smooth surface, like glass or wood.

Judge Wing then asked the witness a hypothetical question containing about 800 words.

"Take a man between 40 and 46 years of age," he began, "a physician by profession, in good health, who leaves his home at 7 o'clock on the evening of May 4 and his body is discovered in a catch basin on the 22d of May"—the rest of the question was a report of the autopsy on the body.

"Now, what would you say, doctor, in answer to that question as to what was the cause of death? Can you form an opinion?"

"No, I can not."

Cross-examination by Mr. Hynes:

"You say that the wounds described by Judge Wing in his hypothetical question are not necessarily fatal?"

"No, sir, they are not."

"Would not the violence producing the wounds be fatal?"

"It might be. The violence producing those wounds could produce a shock that would be sufficient to cause death."

Dr. Lester Curtis was then examined. His experiments with the microscope date back to 1876. Human hair, he said, is very frequently confounded with the hair of a dog and other lower animals. He doesen't think it is possible to determine that two locks of hair came from the same head.

Judge Wing then asked him the hypothetical question that he asked of Dr. Moyer.

"I don't think the wounds would be necessarily fatal," he replied.

"Is any wound necessarily fatal?" asked Mr. Hynes.

"A wound through the heart would cause death."

"Do you think decapitation would be necessarily fatal?"

"Yes, sir," the witness innocently replied, and a ripple of laughter passed over the court room.

"What is your medical opinion, doctor," interrupted Judge Wing, "as to what caused death in the case I have stated?"

"Well, there are a good many things that would cause death——"

"Yes, a stroke of lightning," put in Mr. Hynes.

Court then adjourned, and the spectators were still laughing at Mr. Hynes' repartee when they got out on the street.

The City of New York Disabled.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—Ths Inman Line steamer City of New York, Capt. Lewis, from New York November 12 for Liverpool, which arrived at Queenstown last night, broke the crank-pin of her port shaft about 2,400 miles west of Queenstown. After the accident she proceeded under her starboard engine. During this time her daily runs were 375, 382, 352, and 316 miles.

Dr. P. MINCER, the eminent optician of Detroit, Mich, will visit every town in this county during the summer. Any one suffering with weak eyes, or eyes abused by inferior glasses, should not fail to see him. Orders left at the post-office will be promptly attended to. No extra charge for examing or visiting patients at their homes.

Dr. Mincer will be at the Myers house saturday, Nov. 30th. One day only.

BIG RAILROAD DEAL.

Traffic Alliance Between the Rock Island and the Santa Fe.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—By far the most important railroad deal that has come to pass for years has been completed. It is a combination between the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific and the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroads, whereby a through line between Chicago and California points is formed as a rival of the Union Pacific and the Chicago & Northwestern alliance. The matter has been in negotiation for some time and the final details of the arrangement were finished late yesterday afternoon, and the contract duly signed by the proper officials of the interested companies. It becomes operative at once.

By the terms of the contract, which is made to cover a long period of years, the Rock Island and the Atchison bind themselves to the operation of a through line between Chicago and all Pacific coast points for the handling of transcontinental traffic, the line to be known as the Rock Island & Santa Fe route. The junction point of the two systems in the formation of this line is Dodge City, Kan., where all east and west bound business will be transferred. The entire route is made 167 miles shorter than that now in operation by the Santa Fe alone.

Furthermore it will make the shortest route in existence from Chicago to all California points south of Los Angeles, while to San Francisco the distance will be only 222 miles greater than by the Northwestern and Union Pacific.

Railroad men generally recognize the importance of this new alliance and are of the opinion that it will make the Union Pacific sick of its bargain. It creates a short line between Chicago and the richest fruit growing sections of California, while establishing a powerful competitor for all Pacific coast traffic. The agreement becomes effective at once as far as freight business is concerned, and as soon as the necessary arrangements can be completed it is the purpose of the allied lines to put into service solid through passenger trains between Chicago and San Francisco.

The Rock Island and the Santa Fe are strong competitors between Chicago and the Missouri river, and also between Chicago and Denver. The agreement does not affect their relations in this respect except that it binds them to harmonious action in all matters affecting rates, and will compel them to keep faith with each other wherever they come in competition.

The traffic contract appplies only to Pacific coast business. The Santa Fe will continue to control all its own traffic to and from points in Kansas, Colorado, Indian Territory, and Texas, and will handle all business over its own line between Chicago and Kansas City except that destined to or originating at points on the Pacific slope. The officials of both roads are well satisfied with their contract and expect to prove very soon that the alliance is an immensely beneficial one to both properties.

One great advantage is claimed for this lino over that of the Union Pacific: It crosses the continent in a latitude that is free from snow blockades, and will in all probability be able to make better average time during the winter months than its northern competitors.

ROYAL ARCH MASONS.

Officers Elected by the Grand Chapter in Session at Atlanta.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 22.—The Grand chapter, Royal Arch Masons, after the transaction of routine business and appointing standing committees, elected the following officers: General grand high priest, David N. Day of Buffalo, N. Y.; general deputy grand high priest, James P. Horner of New Orleans; general grand king, George L. McCanan of Baltimore, Md.; general grand scribe, Benjamin F. Hallar of Memphis, Tenn.; general grand treasurer, Reuben C. Lammon of Toledo, Ohio; general grand secretary, Christopher G. Fox of Buffalo, N. Y.; general grand captain of the host, Sylvester S. Bean of Creston, Ill. There was a grand banquet last night, the toasts being responded to by Noble D. Le Mar of Washington, K. D. Davidson of Georgia, M. Chapman of Boston, and H. W. Grady and Hoke Smith of Atlanta.

POWDERLY NOT AFRAID.

He Speaks of His Threatened Arrest With the Greatest Composure.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 22.—General Master Workman Powderly says he is not disturbed by the report that he may be arrested on his return North. He goes from Atlanta to Scranton, his home, and says they can arrest him there if they want to. He leaves Atlanta to-morrow. Of the Callahan matter he says that while he has written letters for The Journal of United Labor he does not know what letters Callahan refers to and can not recall that he ever said anything about Callahan. He is willing that the letters should speak for themselves. He supposes the defeat of Callahan for the Legislature is the conspiracy referred to. He does not know Callahan personally.

THEIR SAVINGS LOST.

The Lawrence Bank, Largely Patronized by Working Men, Closes Its Doors.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 22.—Long & Co., iron and steel manufacturers, of Chartiers, failed yesterday, confessing judgment in favor of the Lawrence bank for $300,000. The bank closed its doors on account of its checks being returned from the clearing house.

Pressdent Young says the bank will not be reopened. The failure of Long & Co., was principally caused by bad investments. The working classes of Lawrenceville were large patrons of the Lawrence bank and lose nearly all they possess. The capital of the bank was $800,000; surplus, $45,000. It is given out that the liabilities of the bank are $709,000.

Catarrh

Is a constitutional and not a local disease, and therefore it cannot be cured by local applications. It requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, working through the blood, eradicates the impurity which causes and promotes the disease, and effects a permanent cure. Thousands of people testify to the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a remedy for catarrh when other preparations had failed. Hood's Sarsaparilla also builds up the whole system and makes you feel renewed in health and strength.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

IN NO HURRY TO RECOGNIZE THE BRAZILIAN REPUBLIC.

The Monarchy's Representatives Re-Appointed by the Provisional Government—Appointments.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—It is not considered probable that the United States government will take any official recognition of the change of government in Brazil at present. It is not customary in such cases that a new government is recognized, or any action taken looking to the formal recognition or otherwise until matters have assumed a definite shape and probable permanency of the new government established. Hence it is probable that all official action will be delayed until the new government is permanently established and a representative of the organized government is appointed to present himself as such to the government of the United States.

Consul Burke reports to the State Department from Bahia, the Brazilian province which at first held out against the republic, that the feeling of the people there is very friendly toward this country, and an inclination to encourage trade is seen, but that English and German manufacturers have an advantage in the fact of rapid communication, low freight rates, and because their goods are manufactured especially for the Brazilian trade and are more acceptable to purchasers.

THE PAN-AMERICANS.

Delegates From Brazil Resume Their Place in the Congress.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The pan-American congress devoted to-day to the consideration of rules, making but little progress. The event of the season was the announcement by the Brazilian delegates that they had been invited by the provisional government to resume their duties as members of the congress representing the United States of Brazil. The announcement was received with applause, and the members were congratulated on the event. A resolution by ex-Senator Henderson, delegate from Missouri, welcoming the United States of Brazil to the sisterhood of American republics, met with disapproval. Some of the delegates said that they sympathized with the new government, but deemed the proposition of the member from Missouri injudicious at present, pending the organization of the new government. The discussion was continued at considerable length, Delegate Henderson speaking warmly in defense of his resolution as one eminently proper. Several delegates asked that action on the resolution be deferred and a motion to lay it on the table was adopted. After some further consideration of the rules the congress adjourned until Monday.

The Brazilian minister has received a cablegram from the minister of foreign affairs of the United States of Brazil, requesting him to act as their envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States. The minister will accept the appointment.

UNCLE SAM'S NAVY.

Its Condition as Shown by the Annual Report of Commodore Wilson.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Commodore Wilson, chief of the construction and repairs bureau of the navy department, in his annual report to Secretary Tracy, speaks highly of all the navy yards, especially of the one at League Island, Pa. There are but twenty-one wooden vessels left that are serviceable and over $191,000 was expended on them last year for repairs. There are four new steel cruisers and one dispatch boat in commission besides three iron steamers. Work is progressing favorably on the new cruisers. Commodore Wilson asks for $2,216,492.50 for next year exclusive of the amounts already appropriated for new vessels. He recommends that the monitors be made ready for service and also that the cost of vessels of the authorized type be limited.

A COOL REQUEST.

It Emanated from a Pennsylvania Manufacturer.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Edward Fort, president of the Pittsburg Plate Glass company of Creighton, Pa., recently wrote to the Treasury Department announcing his intention to commence the manufacture of plate glass, stating that it was a new industry for which skilled labor could not be secured in this country, and asking that he be allowed to import fifty men from Europe. Acting Secretary Batchelor in reply commends him for going about his work in a legal manner, but states that plate glass manufacture is not a new industry, having been established in this country for twenty years, and declines to grant his request, as the law prohibiting the importation of alien contract labor covers such cases.

A Day's Appointments.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The President has appointed Thomas Clay McDowell of Kentucky collector of internal revenue for the Seventh district of Kentucky, vice William C. Goodloe, deceased.

Mr. McDowell is the son-in-law of Mrs. Goodloe.

Other appointments were: John H. Devaux of Georgia, to be collector of customs for the district of Brunswick, Ga.; David B. Miller of Iowa to be marshal of the United States for the southern district of Iowa; Lewis Miles of Iowa, to be attorney of the United States for the southern district of Iowa; Joseph H. Wilson of Texas, to be attorney of the United States for the eastern district of Texas; James H. Beatty of Idaho, to be chief justice of Idaho.

United States Bonds Outstanding.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Gen. W. S. Rosecrans, registrar of the Treasury, in his annual report shows that during the year 21,500 bonds, amounting to $103,894,350 were issued, and 85,149 bonds, representing $231,811,450, were canceled. The total amount of bonds outstanding is $702,328,812, of which only $10,362,850, or 1.36 per cent, is held abroad. There are now outstanding in treasury notes, certificates, etc., $813,865, very little of which will probably ever be presented to the government for redemption because lost or destroyed, thus making the government a gainer to the extent of nearly $1,000,000.

Must Refund or Be Dismissed.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Secretary Noble has decided that rerated pension money illegally paid to pension office employes must be refunded if the receipents are able, but if the money has been spent they will be dismissed, as the Secretary does not propose to allow them to refund it piecemeal from their salaries or pensions.

The Wine Crop of Italy.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Reports from Consul Diller at Florence, Italy, show that the wine crop of Italy is far below the standard of last year, the falling off being 269,000,000 gallons.

Consul Earle's Report.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Consul Earle writes to the department of State that the new harbor at La Pallice, France, is nearing completion, and it will be the finest harbor on the west coast of France, where there were heretofore no good harbors. The work upon this, which has been some eight years in progress, has cost about 21,000,000 francs. A line of steamers is to run to the new harbor from the United States.

Capital Gossip.

EX-COMMISSIONER OF PENSIONS DUDLEY and ex-Commissioner of Pensions Tanner have formed a partnership for conducting pension claims.

THE Quinnebaug and Juniata, which have been condemned by a board of survey, were yesterday stricken from the list of vessels of the navy. They will be advertised and sold.

THE LEAGUE EXPLAINS.

An Address Showing Why There Is a Baseball War.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 22.—The committee which was appointed at the recent annual meeting of the National league of professional ball clubs to prepare an address to the public defining the position of that organization in the present baseball controversy, has completed its labors. The committee consisted of A. G. Spalding of Chicago, John B. Day of New York, and John I. Rogers of Philadelphia. After reciting the fact that the league was organized in 1876 for the purpose of rescuing the game from the slough of corruption into which it had fallen under the National association, and that it abolished pool selling, betting, and drinking on the grounds and expelled two strong clubs for violating schedule engagements, the address continues:

"The struggle for existence for the next three or four years was desperate, and at each annual meeting there occurred vacancies difficult to fill because of the almost certain financial disasters threatening clubs in the smaller cities. Finally, as a check upon competition, the weaker clubs in the league demanded the privilege of reserving five players who would form the nucleus of a team for the ensuing season. This was the origin of the 'reserve rule,' and from its adoption may be dated the development of better financial results. The system of reserve having proved beneficial both to clubs and players the reserve list was increased to eleven and then to fourteen, or an entire team.

The address insists that except in cases of disbanding or retiring clubs the right of release has never been transferred without the player's co-operation and consent, usually at his request and for his own pecuniary emolument. It says the fifteenth section was written in the contracts by the brotherhood committee and is essential to any league, and is recognized by the new league which the seceding players have temporarily organized. The address claims the alleged profits of the baseball business have been largely exaggerated and that all that has been made has been invested in grounds and improvements.

The address continues: "The refusal of the brotherhood committee to meet the league in conference at the close of the season proves incontestably that the imperative demand for a conference in midsummer to redress grievances that have never yet materialized was a mere pretext for secession. Under false promises to their brother players that they would only secede in the event of the league refusing them justice they secured the signatures of the latter to a secret pledge or oath to desert their clubs at the bidding of their dissatisfied leaders. Upon the publication of their plot Sept. 7, 1889, they and their abettors denied day after day that there was any foundation for the story, and repeatedly plighted their words that the league should have a chance to redress their alleged grievances before they would order a 'strike.' How false their promises and pledges, how evasive, contradictory, and mendacious have been their every act and deed from first to last, we leave to the readers of the daily and weekly press for verification."

ROBBED OF $80,000.

Charles Montgomery, of San Francisco, Forced to Assign by His Partner.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 22.—Charles Montgomery, owner of the American Exchange hotel in this city, who is well known here on account of his charity, declares that he has been robbed of $80,000 by an adventurer and is forced to make an assignment. His liabilities amount to about $220,000 and his nominal assets to $320,000.

Over two years ago Mr. Montgomery met a young man who gave the name of E. Glenncross Grant, and who had identified himself with the Young Men's Christian association here. Montgomery took an interest in him and finally formed a partnership with him, organizing the Bull & Grant Farm Implement company, with stores in this city and Los Angeles. Grant was placed in charge of the Los Angeles store. Montgomery, who furnished the capital, recently discovered that Grant had contracted debts and had also appropriated the proceeds of the sale of machinery, amounting to about $80,000. Grant's record has been looked up, and it has been discovered that his name is Glencross and that he committed similar offenses in London and fled to this country. Under the name of Edward Glencross he worked as a clerk in a railway clearing house of London. He was also known in London as Ebenezer Glencross. His present whereabouts are unknown.

KILLED AT HIS HOME.

Murder of an Arkansas Merchant by Two Unknown Assassins.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 22.—News has just reached here of a murder committed Wednesday at Dutton, Madison county, Ark. Isom Ritchey, an old resident and merchant of that place, was called out of his house about midnight by two men, who commanded him to throw up his hands and demanded his money. Ritchey started to run back into the house and was struck several blows with a club and shot just below the heart. The murderers becoming frightened, ran away.

DIED WITH HER DAUGHTER.

Mrs. Nathan Strang Swallows Paris Green and Compels Her Child to Do Likewise.

MOSHERVILLE, Mich. Nov. 21.—During the absence of her husband last night Mrs. Nathan Strang filled two tumblers with a solution of paris green, and handing one to her daughter Maud, a handsome girl of 18, and taking the other herself, she drank her own dose and forced the girl at the muzzle of a revolver to swallow the fatal draught. On her husband's return she told him what she had done. Mrs. Strang died about midnight in horrible agony and Maud died an hour or two later.

BRAVE SURGEONS.

Incidents Showing Their Perils in War Time.

The coolest courage in time of war is not always shown by the officer or soldier. The surgeon and ambulance nurse carry on their work of saving life as undismayed in the midst of shot and shell as the men whose work it is to take it.

An anecdote is often told by the seafaring folk who live on the shores of Buzzard's Bay, of a certain Dr. Ebenezer Swift, who went from among them to serve in the Mexican war. He was Surgeon in Gen. Kearney's division under Gen. Scott through all the battles of the campaign.

During the battle of Molino del Rey, he was so busily occupied with the wounded that he did not perceive that the American lines had fallen back, and that he was left exposed to a raking fire from the enemy.

Gen. Worth, passing, ordered him sharply to fall back, adding: "You are drawing the fire from Chapultepec."

The busy Doctor glanced up at the clouds of smoke and dust, and answered, absently:

"In a moment, sir. After another amputation."

A similar story is told of three American surgeons who volunteered their services to the Russian army during the war of the Crimea. They soon were disgusted with the poverty and the savage butcheries on both sides; but in every battle they were in the thickest of the fight, dragging out the wounded and aiding them, although they were repeatedly warned to fall back to the surgeons' tents in the rear.

During the final battle before Sebastopol, the Russian officers were incensed at seeing these young fellows busy at their work in the most exposed part of the field. An orderly was sent to them with an angry message. He galloped up, and, with a volley of oaths, demanded, as from the commanding officer, "what they were there for?"

One of them, covered with blood, looked up with a smile.

"Tell the General," said he "that we are here to remind the world of civilization in the midst of this brutality."

THE CASUALTY RECORD.

PECULIAR ACCIDENT TO A RAILWAY TRAIN.

Fatal Wreck at Marquette—Devastated by a Hurricane—The Waubeshene Safe—A Day's Mishaps.

CLINTON, Iowa, Nov. 21.—The south bound Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul passenger train from Sabula to Clinton was wrecked in a peculiar manner at Lyons last night. A broken rail caused the tender and baggage coach to leave the track just as they crossed a trestle, and at the same instant the trestle collapsed beneath the passenger coach, containing twenty people, so that it hung just caught by the ends, bridging a gulf twenty feet in depth. It was a marvelous escape Three or four were slightly injured, among them Conductor C. Westcott.

LOST IN SIGHT OF LAND.

A Vessel Wrecked and All Hands Supposed to Have Been Lost.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Nov. 22.—A square-rigged vessel supposed to be a bark, went ashore on the south side of Cuttyhunk about 6 o'clock this morning, and went to pieces. Soon after workmen on the life saving station made out her name as the Willie and Ida. A man was described coming out of the cabin just before the vessel broke up and was afterwards seen climbing to a spar and waving for help, until he lost his hold and was drowned. A body was washed ashore a little later. The vessel was loaded with logwood. It is feared that all hands were lost, as their only hope was to work down the sound to the eastward in their boat.

DESTRUCTIVE CYCLONE.

A Pulpmill Demolished and Two of the Employes Killed.

NEWBERNE, N. C., Nov. 22.—At 1 o'clock this afternoon a cyclone struck this city. Gray's pulpmill was leveled to the ground. Two employes were killed and many hurt. Many houses were unroofed and scores of persons injured. The loss is $200,000.

Railroad Wreck at Marquette.

MARQUETTE, Mich., Nov. 22.—A freight train on the South Shore road got from the control of the freight crew as it was nearing town on a heavy down grade shortly before 12 o'clock last night. It rushed through the city at a frightful speed, and at a point where the track curves to follow the lake shore the engine left the rails, going down a twelve-foot embankment. The engineer was caught under the engine, which turned over, and was killed. The fireman got off with light hurts, but the brakeman is badly hurt, and will hardly recover.

Fatal Result of a Windstorm.

NEW BERNE, N. C., Nov. 22.—A fearful storm struck New Berne at 1 p. m. yesterday, coming from the southwest. The plate and pulp factory of S. H. Gray, in which there were sixty hands, was leveled to the ground. One employe was instantly killed, another mortally wounded, and eight others injured. The factory was valued at $10,000. The damage to the house and stock is $80,000.

The Waubeshene Safe in Port.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Nov. 22.—The barge Waubeshene, which broke loose from her tow, the Isaac May, Tuesday night, has arrived in Toronto all rigat. She drifted across the lake and down the north shore to Scarboro heights, when a tug from Toronto went to her assistance and towed her into that harbor.

Laborers Buried Alive in an Excavation.

PAOLA, Kan., Nov. 22.—P. S. Countz and Tulius Clarry, while digging a cellar yesterday, were buried by one of the sides of the excavation falling in. When discovered both were dead. Each leaves a family.

Killed By Electricity.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Nov. 22.—Frank Foster attempted to put off an electric light with a wet iron gaff last night and was instantly killed. He leaves a wife and three children.

WHITE MINERS FROZEN OUT

Indiana Operators Import Negroes to Take the Places of Strikers.

BRAZIL, Ind., Nov. 22.—The block coal operators, whose miners have been on strike here since May 1, have arranged for 500 or more colored miners from a Southern State to go to work in their mines at once at the price against which the miners struck. Orders for coal are now slack, but as fast as work can be given the colored miners are to come. The first installment came Thursday. They go to work at once in Gartsherrie, No. 2, the Brazil Block company being operators. Colored miners do not strike, not belonging to labor organizations. This action of the operators will probably end the strike at the mass meeting to-morrow, since the positions will soon be filled and all on strike will be crowded out. Miners now at work outnumber the rest of the strikers, of whom only about four hundred remain out, the rest of the 2,000 having left or gone to work in bituminous mines or accepted the operators' reduction.

JOHN L. MAY MEET JACKSON.

He Offers to Fight for $15,000, and a California Club Offers That Amount.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 22.—John L. Sullivan has come down on his figure for a fight with Peter Jackson. "I will meet him now," he said, "for a $15,000 purse, winner to take all, and I'll guarantee to bring five men with me that will out-bet the friends of Jackson. That will be the lowest amount I will fight for. I intend to purchase a farm within ten miles of Boston and give my whole attention to raising horses. I don't care whether I fight again or not. I have plenty of money, although they say I am broke."

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 22.—W. R. Dailey has telegraphed John L. Sullivan that the San Jose Athletic association would put up a $15,000 purse for a finish fight between him and Jackson. If Sullivan accepts a fight will be arranged at once.

PIERCE FORMALLY ELECTED.

The New Senator Addresses North Dakota's Legislature.

BISMARCK, N. Dak., Nov. 22.—At a joint session of the legislature ex-Governor Gilbert A. Pierce was formally elected a United States Senator for North Dakota and received his certificate. The efforts of the candidates for the second senatorship to force a vote failed, a motion to adjourn prevailing by a vote of 32 to 30. It looks now as if ex-Gov. Ordway would be elected.

Jeff Davis Out of Danger.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 22.—Jefferson Davis passed a quiet night and was considerably improved this morning. He is entirely free of fever and the indications are that he will recover.

The Lady Godiva must have had exceptionally long hair since it completely concealed her lovely person. Since Ayer's Hair Vigor came into use such examples are not so rare as formerly. It not only promotes the growth of the hair but gives it a rich, silken texture.

Anguish Unspeakable.

Is endured by the victims of inflammatory rheumatism, and any form of the disease may reach that agonizing phase or attack the heart and cause death. Unhappily they who feel its preliminary twinges seldom realize this. Like other possibly dangerous maladies, rheumatism is often disregarded at the outset. Well will it be for him if this brief notice shall serve as a warning of future peril or pain to a reader troubled with rheumatism. The proper sequel will be an instantaneous resort to the great preventative depulent, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, whose brevet of professional commendation popular experience has confirmed. There is no finer or more generl antidote to the virus of rheumatism in the system. Botanic in its origin, it is free from the objections attained to depuren poisons liable to be taken in more than the infinitestimal dose The Bitters conquers malaria, indigestion, liver and kidney troubles.

High-Pressure

Living characterizes these modern days. The result is a fearful increase of Brain and Heart Diseases — General Debility, Insomnia, Paralysis, and Insanity. Chloral and Morphia augment the evil. The medicine best adapted to do permanent good is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It purifies, enriches, and vitalizes the blood, and thus strengthens every function and faculty of the body.

"I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, in my family, for years. I have found it invaluable as for Nervous Debility caused by an inactive liver and a low state of the blood." —Henry Bacon, Xenia, Ohio.

"For some time I have been troubled with heart disease. I never found anything to help me until I began using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I have only used this medicine six months, but it has relieved me from my trouble, and enabled me to resume work." — J. P. Carzanett, Perry, Ill.

"I have been a practicing physician for over half a century, and during that time I have never found so powerful and reliable an alterative and blood-purifier as Ayer's Sarsaparilla." — Dr. M. Maxstart, Louisville, Ky.

THE HAND EMBROIDERER

This is a New Machine for Doing Colored Embroidery by Hand.

It is specially designed to work fine silk and other embroidery threads, arasene, filloselle, etc., such as have never before been successfully wrought by mechanical means. These threads

It Will Work Beautifully

And its work with some of them, notably arasene, is handsomer than the same pattern worked with this material can be made with an ordinary needle.

It does its work with great rapidity—ten times faster than can be done by hand.

Work done with it can be shaded as delicately as in hand-work, and the implement can be so adjusted as to

Embroider Large or Small Designs

with equal success. It is a beautiful hand-implement full NICKEL PLATED, with ebony handle, is made of the best materials and will last for years. It is very Simple in Construction — And Easily Operated.

Any lady who can learn to use a sewing machine can learn to work it successfully with a very little practice. Our lady friends who have long been

Wishing to Decorate Their Homes

And apparel with handsome embroidery, but who have been unable to do so for lack of time in which to do the work, can gratify their desires in this direction by using this ingenious implement, which will do the work in one tenth the time it took the old way.

The retail price of this machine is three dollars, but we furnish it and a year's Subscription to

The Weekly Gazette

For $2.50, Postpaid to any Address.

Old subscribers to the Gazette may secure the benefit of this offer by paying to date and $2 50 in advance.

Samples of work done by this machine are on exhibition at the store of E. B. HEIMSTREET, druggist, directly opposite the Gazette office.

ABYSSINIA'S NEW KING.

The Son of a Beggar Becomes the Most Powerful Native Ruler in Africa.

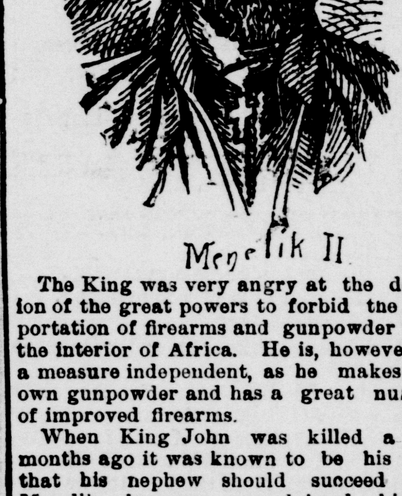

King Menelik II., with a vast retinue, is advancing north to Adua, where all the Kings of Abyssinia are crowned. Within a few weeks the ceremony of coronation will be performed. The new ruler of Abyssinia will be the most powerful ruler Abyssinia has had for generations, for his kingdom includes not only the domain of the late King John, but also Shoa, Menelik's own country, in the southern part of the Abyssinian highlands, where Menelik has long had an army of 100,000 men, about one-fourth of whom carry improved firearms.

Menelik's father, King Haelon, heard one day that a woman of striking beauty was seeking alms at the door of the palace. He sent for her and was so greatly impressed by her charms that he introduced her among the women of his establishment. When a boy was born the King said he would not recognize him as his son unless in the course of years he showed a striking resemblance to his majesty. As the boy grew up he came to look very much like his royal father, and the King named him as his heir, though he had other sons who thought they had a better right to the throne. The most powerful native ruler in Africa to-day is, therefore, the son of a beggar woman, and his mother recently was still alive, enjoying high honor in Shoa.

This picture of Menelik II. is from a photograph taken four years ago. Physically the King is not an impressive person. He is almost coal black, stout and dumpy. Unlike his uncle, Ras Darghe, and others among his chief advisers, he is very friendly to Europeans, and wants to introduce their arts into his country. He has a remarkable fondness for machinery and implements of all sorts, and his greatest delight is to examine their mechanism. Employers say he ruined about a dozen watches and alarm clocks taking them apart and trying to put them together again. He became at least, however, quite a proficient watch tinker.

Several years ago Mr. Chefneux took the King as a present from the French government a mitrailleuse. For convenience of carrying it had been taken to pieces and compactly packed. The weapon reached the King several days before the traveler did, and very much to Mr. Chefneux's astonishment he found the weapon properly put together and mounted. The King had made a careful study of the mechanism of firearms and with the aid of a picture of a mitrailleuse he had prepared this little surprise for the white man.

The King is gentle and amiable to those who have his friendship, but he has been guilty of acts of gross cruelty and injustice to conquered enemies. He has largely widened the boundaries of Shoa by conquering the fierce Galla tribes around him. He has some men of ability among his generals and counselors, and to them much of his prestige is attributed. Personally he is not conspicuous as a warrior, and in most things he has shown himself easily influenced by his advisers. But he is distinguished above them all for his faith in the advantage of drawing useful lessons from civilized countries. He does not like missionaries, however. In 1885 he kept two Swedish missionaries practically prisoners in his chief town for ten months and then sent them back to the coast. Since then he has expelled all the French Catholic and German missionaries from his country.

Menelik II

The King was very angry at the decision of the great powers to forbid the importation of firearms and gunpowder into the interior of Africa. He is, however, in a measure independent, as he makes his own gunpowder and has a great number of improved firearms.

When King John was killed a few months ago it was known to be his wish that his nephew should succeed him. Menelik, however, proclaimed himself King of Abyssinia, and all the provinces in the country except Tigre have recognized him as the new ruler.

The Shoans are of the same race and speak the same language as the Abyssinians. Their country is simply a part of Abyssinia, whose chief became powerful enough to be practically independent of the ruler farther north.

"UNCLE" HENRY.

A Colored Man Who Has Handled Representatives of Billions of Dollars.

Few if any persons in this country have handled more money and checks, bonds, and other representatives of money than "Uncle" Henry Logan, the messenger of the register of the treasury, says a Washington letter to the Memphis Avalanche. He is a colored man, past 70, as punctual as the hands of a clock, and as trustworthy as a burglar-proof safe. His principal function is to carry checks, warrants, bonds, etc., to and from the register's office, where they have to be signed. He has been doing this for twenty-five years, with scarcely a day's absence during all that time. He has handled a large part of the bonds and currency issued by the government and the warrants that have been drawn upon the treasury.

The aggregate in dollars, if it could be figured out, would go high up into the billions. Express companies are paid a fixed sum per mile for every $1,000 they transport for the government, and if "Uncle" Henry had been paid at the same rate he would now be rolling in wealth. He receives a salary of $720 a year and on this modest income he has been able to buy a home and raise a large family. "Uncle" Henry held his place all through Mr. Cleveland's administration and bids fair to remain until the infirmities of age compel his retirement. His black face and white hair are in striking contrast. His pleasant, grandfatherly ways make him a general favorite in the department. He says he has no politics.

It Disagreed With Him.

A business man and financier of the first rank in Boston is so absent-minded that he occasionally forgets to go to his dinner. His customary hour for this meal—when he remembers it—is 2 o'clock. The other day quite absorbed in business, he worked steadily on until 4 o'clock, and then began to have a quite natural sense of emptiness and yearning in his stomach. "Dear me," he said, musingly, applying the flat of his hand to his waistcoat, "I wonder what I ate for dinner that disagrees with me!"

JOSH BILLINGS' PHILOSOPHY.

One grate diffrense between a phool and a wize man iz this—the phool gaps at and then swallows allmost everything he sees, but the wize man looks upon most things in this world az perfektly ridikilous.

The man who haz sworn not to forgive haz uttered the wust oath he kan take.

Real poverty, that cums upon us from no fault ov our own, is the most greavous thing to bear.

A tru friend iz one who ain't afrade to tell us ov our faults.

Tru generosity konsists in knowing when to give and when not to.

Genius seems to be the fakulty ov doing a thing excellently well, that nobody suppozed could be done at all.

Thare haz been no man kreated yet who huz been superior to all others in everything.

The most dangerous person in this world iz the one with the most tallents and the least virteu.

If you are going to help a man, do it rite off. Promised help loozes one haff its aroma by evaporashun.

"He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord." Here iz an investment for yure munny, whare the rate ov interest iz the highest, and the sekurity undoubted.

Thare iz in sum men a grate deal ov good humor that iz like the frolik in a puppy—don't mean ennything in partikular.

Health iz like munny; we never have a true idea ov its value until we loze it.

The Cotton Worm.

That one drug house in Vicksburg should receive orders for fifteen tons, or 30,000 pounds, of paris green in one day demonstrates the extent of the apprehension felt by the cotton planters concerning the cotton worms in the large area of country tributary to or trading with that city. With the cotton worms so formidable in their second generation, the third generation, which forms a vast increase over its progenitors, may do very serious damage. It is extremely unfortunate, if it be true, that the available supply of paris green has been already exhausted. It is likely that far more than the amount already used will be needed for a month to come. Where these pests are unchecked by poison, in their third generation, they have been known to ravage cotton fields and leave the stalks as bare of foliage in the latter part of August and September as they are in early February before being pulled up and burned, preparatory to the planting of a new crop.

TO MONTANA, OREGON AND WASHINGTON.

If you are going west bear in mind the following facts: The Northern Pacific Railroad owns and operates 987 miles, or 57 per cent. of the entire railroad mileage of Montana; spans the territory with its main lines from east to west: is the short line to Helena; the only Pullman and dining car line to Butte, and is the only line that reaches Miles City, Billings, Bozeman, Missoula, the Yellowstone National Park and, in fact, nine-tenths of the cities and points of interest in the territory.

The Northern Pacific owns and operates 621 miles or 56 per cent of the railroad mileage of Washington, its main line extending from the Idaho line via Spokane Falls, Cheney, Sprague, Yakima and Ellensburg, through the center of the territory to Tacoma and Seattle, and from Tacoma to Portland. No other transcontinental through rail line reaches any portion of Washington Territory. Ten days stop over privileges are given on Northern Pacific second class tickets at Spokane Falls and all points west, thus affording intending settlers an excellent opportunity to see the entire territory without incurring the expense of paying local fares from point to point.

The Northern Pacific is the shortest route from St. Paul to Tacoma by 207 miles; to Seattle by 177 miles, and to Portland by 324 miles—time correspondingly shorter, varying from one to two days, according to destination. No other line from St. Paul or Minneapolis runs through passenger cars of any kind into Idaho, Oregon or Washington.

In addition to being the only rail line to Spokane Falls, Tacoma and Seattle, the Northern Pacific reaches all the principal points in Northern Minnesota and Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington. Bear in mind that the Northern Pacific and Shasta line is the scenic route to all points in California.

Send for illustrated pamphlets, maps, and books giving you valuable information in reference to the country traversed by this great line from St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and Ashland to Portland, Oregon, and Tacoma and Seattle, Washington, Territory, and enclose stamps for the new 1889 Rand McNally County map of Washington Territory, printed in colors.

STATE OF WISCONSIN.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

BY THE GOVERNOR.

Since the early days of the Republic it has been the grateful pleasure and custom of the people to assemble once a year, and by thanksgiving, praise and feasting, render unto the Giver of All Good a sincere expression of gratitude for His unfailing care and goodness.

Now, therefore, I, William D. Hoard, governor of the state of Wisconsin, in conformity with this most fitting custom and the proclamation of the president of the United States, do appoint Thursday, November 28th, 1889, as a day of thanksgiving.

I furthermore recommend that on that day the people of Wisconsin abstain from all labor and give thanks to Almighty God, by appropriate exercises in their places of worship and their homes, for the abundant mercies which we have received at His hands in the past year.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of Wisconsin to be affixed. Done at the capitol, in [Great Seal] Madison, this 7th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine.

WILLIAM D. HOARD.

By the Governor:
ERNST G. TIMME, Secretary of State.

—Milwaukee Journal: George R. Peck, a Wisconsin boy who drifted out to Kansas after the war and has become a wealthy and prominent lawyer, was at a gathering of republican politicians at Topeka recently. A friend asked him: "How is it, Peck, that all these fellows are generals or colonels and you are only a captain?" "Oh, I was in the war, you know," said Peck.

—Field mice have begun early to gnaw trees near the ground, and unless promptly checked they may destroy many thousands of choice fruit and shade trees this winter. Immediately remove all grass, weeds, straw, stubble or other rubbish from around tree stems and then mound up dirt a foot high around every one. Against rabbits, bind lath strips, corn stalks, wisps of slough grass, hay rope, rags or something about the stems to keep the rabbits from getting at them. Some smear tree stems two or three times during the winter with lard mixed with sulphur.—Ex.

—A gentleman went into a gun shop in this city the other day and while he was making some purchases he laid down a bundle containing two pounds of steak which the gunsmith quietly took and placed behind the counter. Then a third person got in his work by stealing the meat from the gunsmith. Pretty soon the customer began to inquire for his meat and when the gunsmith thought the joke had gone far enough, he reached down behind the counter, and lo! the meat was gone. He paid the customer for the steak, and it is said that a certain second warder had beefsteak for breakfast next morning. It isn't safe to ask the market price of steak in that store.

—A fellowship meeting of the Janesville churches, for conference and prayer and mutual helpfulness, will be held in the Congregational Sunday school rooms next Monday afternoon and evening, beginning at 3 o'clock. Those who attend will bring with them a basket collation, and tea and coffee will be provided by the ladies of the Congregational church. The general subject for the day will be "The Friend of Christ." This will be discussed under three topics, "Christian Sincerity," "Christian Faithfulness," and "Christian Enthusiasm." All who are interested in the life and work of the churches are invited to be present. Be sure to bring your lunch with you so as to remain for the hour of social fellowship between the meetings. All bring gospel hymns.

—The National Magazine for December will contain an interesting article by Prof. Schele de Vere of the University of Virginia, entitled "A Chat about Numerals" giving many curious historical facts. Quite a noteworthy contribution to the poetic literature of America will be "The Nativity; a Christmas Carol" by F. W. Harkins, Chancellor of the National University of Chicago, whose Shakespearean essays are continued in this number. "The University Extension System of England" will prove a timely article; being supplemented by a description of a benevolent society for similar work lately organized in Chicago with headquarters at 147 Throop street, called "The University Extension and Home Culture Society." This scholarly magazine is the cheapest of our monthlies, being only $1 per year. Sample copy 10 cents. Published the first of each month by the National University of Chicago, whose novel teaching by mail will be described in this number.

FOR G. A. R. MEN.

COMMANDER FERGUSON'S ORDERS WITH REFERENCE TO POST ELECTIONS.

Commander L. Ferguson, of Wisconsin department, G. A. R., has issued General Orders No. 9, wherein he gives information concerning the annual elections and installations about to be held and the annual encampment to be held in Milwaukee. He says, among other things:

"The practice has been, in many posts to elect as representatives and alternates to the encampment, post commanders and past post commanders. This, it will be seen, is a proceeding entirely useless, because such comrades are entirely ex-officio members of the department encampment. It is more than useless, it is wrong, since it deprives such posts of their full delegation and vote. The number of representatives and alternates to which each post is entitled is based upon the returns for September 30th, 1889. Posts are entitled to one representative and one alternate for every fifty members or major fraction thereof reported in good standing at that date. Posts with less than fifty members are entitled to one representative and one alternate.

"The department commander especially urges posts at the December election to select for representative to the twenty-fourth annual encampment only such comrades as will attend, so that there may be a full encampment to extend a warm welcome and a royal entertainment to our excellent commander-in-chief, whose purpose is to be present during a large portion of the session.

"Some time between the election in December and installation in January, blank credentials will be sent each post, so that the retiring post-commander and adjutant may certify to the election and installation of their successors immediately after they are installed.

"The most important changes in the rules and regulations at the last National encampment are as follows: 1. In posts of less than fifty members five instead of eight constitutes a quorum. 2. Permitting comrades dropped to be reinstated by any post, provided the arrears be paid to the post which dropped them. 3. Provision for a committee of five to determine finally the date of organization of departments so as to determine the rank of each, was also made. 4. The camp system of Sons of Veterans was recognized."

IN CIRCUIT COURT.

The testimony in the action of the State of Wisconsin against George Lee closed this morning, and the closing argument is now making. During the cross examination of the defendant yesterday, it was brought out that his true name is George Lee Donovan; that since he came to this county, for some reason, he has went by the name of George Lee. On motion of the district attorney, it was ordered that the action continue against him by the name of Donovan instead of Lee.

The next case to be called is the State of Wisconsin against Charles Green. A jury will be empanneld this afternoon.

The jury in the Lee case returned a verdict of assault with intent to commit rape, at 4:15 this afternoon.

"Who did you say, is to be the next president?" "Oh! I don't know and don't care. I'am not looking for presidents—I'am looking for a bottle of Salvation Oil. It kills pain every time." Price 25 cents.

One of our most estimable citizens may be thankful for the introduction of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, for its timely use has saved his life. For incipient consumption it is a certain remedy. Price 25 cents.

ERIE MEN MAY STRIKE.

Troubles in Railroad Circles Now Approaching a Crisis.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Rumors of great dissatisfaction and a threatened strike among the employes of the New York, Lake Erie & Western railroad have been prevalent. The engineers, firemen and trainmen, it is said, are almost ready for open revolt.

Verification was given to these rumors by several employes with whom a reporter talked last night. According to their statements a committee laid the grievances before General Manager E. B. Thomas. They say that unless he gives them proper recognition a tie-up of the system will result.

Victims of Hydrophobia.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Nov. 22.—John R. Williams, about 33 years old, was taken violently ill yesterday with hydrophobia, and died this morning after suffering terrible agony. A young son of William A. Bell was also attacked by the disease yesterday. The boy is alive this morning, but can not recouer. Williams was bitten by a mad dog two months ago, and the boy about six weeks ago. The same dog that bit Williams also bit his brother and several other persons, but they have shown no symptoms of the malady yet.

The worst features about catarrh is its dangerous tendency to consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures catarrh by purifying the blood.

EUCHRE PARTY.

WRITTEN BY ONE OF THE FAVORED GUESTS.

Bright gleamed the lights in the "Castle Pond,"
And the faces were equally bright,
That beckoned and welcomed a brilliant band,
In their radiant home last night.

Regardless of wind and the falling rain,
Three score with a single thought,
Gathered beneath the hospitable roof,
Each heart seemed with merriment frought.

We merrily chatted an hour away,
Then were called to a royal repast
That would gladden the heart of an epicure
Of the most fastidious cast.

Feast over and tables were gracefully cleared
And to euchre we turned our attention;
Each mirthfully striving the laurels to win,
In joyous and merry contention.

Each strived with good nature and jest for the crown,
And the striving at tricks grew quite fierce;
But the stern sex whom fortune sweet smiled upon,
Were Putnam, Inman and Pierce.

The fair ones who "got there"—permit me the phrase.
For you know the expression's not foreign,
Who triumphed o'er all the fair rivals they met
Were Misses Patten, Ashcraft and Warren.

We heeded not wind or the patter of rain,
Nor the hours so rapidly flying;
That a new day was just about entering in,
And the present one near unto dying.

To our hostesses then with reluctance we know
Was bidden a cordial good night;
And we parted—each knowing the evening would be
A jewel in memory bright.

OBITUARY.

MRS. E. L. CARPENTER.

Mrs. Tryphola Carpenter, wife of Mr. E. L. Carpenter, aged sixty-six years, died very suddenly last evening at the residence, No. 451 Court street, third ward. She had been feeling as well as usual before tea, but after supper complained of not feeling well, and lying down on a lounge in a few minutes expired. Dr. Palmer was summoned, but he arrived too late. No funeral arrangements have yet been made, it being necessary to await the arrival of relatives from other states. Mrs. Carpenter was an old resident of this city and her death will be sincerely mourned by a large number of friends.

HE LOST AN ARM.

PARTICULARS OF THE ACCIDENT WHICH BEFELL FRED REHBERG AT BRODHEAD.

Brodhead Independent: -A little before nine o'clock Wednesday morning, Fred Rehberg, Jr., a pupil in the fifth room of our public school, while playing with other boys on the railroad grounds near the school house, ran in front of the out-going passenger train and before it could be stopped, the wheels of the locomotive and baggage car passed over his left arm. He was at once taken to the depot and thence to Dr. Towne's office, where the physicians made him as comfortable as possible. He was then taken to his father's south of the track, and in the afternoon his arm was amputated two or three inches from the shoulder. Dr. Bennett performed the operation, assisted by Drs. Towne and Nuzum, and the patient is in a fair way to recover. No blame is attached to the railroad employes, and the boy himself was no more careless than have been multitudes of others. It is probable that in the excitement of his play he rushed upon or near the track without thinking of the approaching train. It is a pity that our school house is located so near the railroad, but as it is there, the only thing to be done is to take all possible care to guard against accidents.

THE OTHER SIDE.

THE WATERMAN CASE IN THE U. S. SUPREME COURT.

To the Editor.

The dispatch to the Sentinel, from Washington, as to the Waterman case, says: "The case was argued to day by Wm. Ruger, of Janesville, and I. C. Sloan, of Madison, for Waterman, and Ogden H. Fethers, of Janesville, for the railway company. * * The supreme court held that the case was never properly removed from the state court, and so reversed the judgment. It is a great victory for the railway company."

The facts are that the case was not argued, and the real or supposed defect in the removal of the case from the state court, was in the petition, drawn by the attorneys for the railway company, to remove the case. The question was raised and decided by the court, without any suggestion of it by counsel, as Mr. Fethers was proceeding to open the argument on its merits. The railway company did thus, by the voluntary interposition of the court, gain an advantage, because of a defect in its own petition, but whether this gives occasion for claiming a great victory is a question of taste, which does not concern me.

THE LATEST FAD.

PLAYED AT CHURCH FAIRS AND ENTERTAINMENTS.

The St. Rose's Orphan's Fair, now being held in Milwaukee, is drawing large crowds of visitors. Among the new features introduced to increase receipts is the following, called the 'Mock Court,' described by the Sentinel:—

"The pretty young lady policemen were very active in arresting old and young men upon the slightest provocation and taking them before the judge, who generally let them off with a fine of 25 cents. Those who refused to pay their fine were placed in the "House of Correction," a dungeon in one corner of the hall. After a culprit had remained behind the bars, observed by all in the room, for a few moments, he generally changed his mind, begging to be released and promising to pay his fine as soon as liberated. All visitors are duly warned by the following notice, which is posted conspicuously in various parts of the hall:—

Notice—The following section of the revised ordinance of the Orphans' fair are now in force. All persons violating the same, or any of them, will be liable to arrest, fine or imprisonment.

BY ORDER OF THE POLICE COURT.

Chapter I.—The following are declared to be offences against the peace and dignity of the fair:

1. Talking with a police officer on his beat.
2. Wearing hat or overcoat at the fair.
3. Sitting too long in one place.
4. Standing too long in one place.
5. Keeping both hands in the pockets.
6. Talking politics.
7. Refusing tickets under false pretenses.
8. Chewing gum.
9. Not having a ticket on the horse.
10. Telling aged anecdotes, to-wit: Chestnuts.
11. Criticising the fair or its management.
12. Trying too hard to be funny.
13. Being too long a bachelor.
14. Being too long a widower.
15. Wearing violent whiskers.
16. Smoking.
17. Having too fierce a mustache.
18. Having too mild a moustache.
19. Sucking a cane.
20. Flirting without an order from the court.

Chapter II—The police court shall have power to order the arrest, fine or imprisonment, for any offense, in its discretion, and new and unheard of offenses shall be created from time to time, whenever necessary.

BY ORDER OF THE POLICE COURT.

Warrants for the arrest of any person can be procured from the clerk of the court at 25 cents each, and the warrant will be immediately executed.

Several real live policemen were arrested by the blue-coated young ladies last night, among them being Sergt. Conley and Patrolman Harris."

Sparks from a locomotive set fire to a hay-stack on the farm of Mr. Peterson, six miles south of Racine. Nine stacks were burned containing thirty tons of hay. The railroad company will be asked to make good the loss.

"Prof." Case, the phrenologist convicted of improper relations with a 14-year-old girl at Racine, was Thursday sentenced to two years in the penitentiary at hard labor. He confessed that the girl was his child, born out of wedlock. When returned to the jail, after being sentenced, Case assaulted the under sheriff, knocking him down. He was in turn knocked down by the officer and heavily ironed

La Crosse Chronicle: The case of Frederick A. Hall against the Chicago, Burlington & Northern railway company has been on trial in St. Paul and resulted in one of the largest verdicts for damages ever found in a similar case. The suit was for $50,000 and $40,000 was the sum awarded. Mr. Hall was formerly an engineer on the Burlington road and ran an engine on the suburban line between the St. Paul union depot and Pullman avenue. One dark night in November of last year, Mr. Hall's engine collided with a switch engine and a disastrous smash-up was the result. Engineer Hall met with injuries which came near proving fatal. Besides breaking several bones he sustained a horrible scalding. He was laid up almost a year, and will probably be a cripple for the remainder of his life.

COURTSHIP AND MARRIAGE.

November chill is,
And lovely Phillis
No longer strolls through the maple grove
At eve with Cory
To hear love's story—
She hears now by the parlor stove.

The parlor bright is,
And long the night is,
But there's little said, tho' there's no one nigh,
But there's much hand pressing
And waist caressing
As the golden moments are hurrying by.

The time most sweet is,
Their joy complete is,
Till a violent stamping is heard o'erhead,
And a voice down calling,
Their hearts appalling—
"Say, tell your beau to go home to bed!"

Thus checked their bliss is,
But a good night kiss is
With haste exchanged ere the youth doth go;
Then homeward hies he
And upstairs flies she,
With cheeks aflame and her heart aglow.

Though courtship sweet is,
Much more complete is
The joy of the matrimonial life;
No parent surely
Can, late or early,
The husband part from his little wife.

REMAINS OF LORD HOWE.

They Are Unearthed at Ticonderoga by Workingmen While Digging a Sewer.

While laborers were engaged in digging a sewer in one of the principal streets of Ticonderoga, N. Y., recently, they struck a tombstone. At the bottom of it was found a coffin containing the bones of a human being. The stone was washed off and found to contain the inscription and date of the death of Lord Howe. The skull was intact, but the rest of the bones were disjointed and considerably decayed. As soon as it had been learned about the village an immense crowd of people assembled and many persons made desperate efforts to procure pieces of the bones. The coffin, which was of oak, was in a fairly good state of preservation, and several years ago the street where the remains were found was filled in several feet, which accounts for the depth of the tombstone's location. The remains will probably be reinterred at once in the village cemetery. There is considerable excitement here over the discovery. Lord Howe, or George Augustus Howe, was born in England in 1724 and was shot dead in the battle at Ticonderoga July 8, 1758. He entered the army at a very early age, soon rose to distinction, and in 1757 was sent to this country in command of the Sixtieth regiment. July 6, 1758, under Commander-in-Chief James Abercrombie, he landed at the outlet of Lake George. Coming suddenly upon the French forces two days later at Fort Ticonderoga he fell at the head of his corps in the ensuing skirmish.

THE TARIFF OF TIPS.

The Proper Amount to Pay Foreign Lackeys for Their Services.

The London Queen gives this interesting information: Questions are frequently reaching us respecting the fees to be given to domestics by visitors at country houses; it is especially young ladies who wish to know this. They are not expected to give to any one except the head housemaid, and the amount to be given is regulated by the length of the visit. For a week, 2s 6d.; for a fortnight, 5s, and 10s for a visit of even five weeks is considered quite sufficient, and a young lady is not expected to fee any of the men servants. In the case of a married couple, if the husband does not bring a man servant with him, he has to fee the man who valets him, whether it is the butler or footman, and this varies from 5s to 10s. The wife fees the housemaid 5s for a few days' visit. Fees to coachmen are seldom given by ladies, and it is quite optional that men give in this direction; it is simply a question of liberality rather than of fixed tariff. When a daughter visits with her father and mother or with a widowed mother, the mother gives the fee to the housemaid, not the daughter, and would increase it accordingly. When a lady does not take a maid with her and has to rely on the assistance of the housemaid in the matter of dressing and packing, she naturally increases the fee to 5s; but most ladies who travel without a maid learn to do everything for themselves.

Indian Chiefs Are Not Good Subjects for the Amateur Photographer.

A Philadelphia tourist stopped off at North Yakima recently. As usual, there were scattered along the principal streets groups of Indians in full dress of buckskin leggings, red blanketc, feathers and green paint. The tourist wandered on until he came face to face with a chief. With an exclamation of satisfaction he pulled his Kodak in front of him and uncovered the slide. In an instant the red man threw up his hands in front of his face and shouted:

"Ugh! Ugh! Bad medicine. Picture no good. Bad medicine."

The tourist only laughed and persisted. The chief stepped forward and pushed the camera to one side. The tourist gave the chief a shove, and got a blow in return. Three or four white men came to the rescue of the Philadelphian, and several braves gathered about the chief and muttered, while one of the youngest laid his hand on a knife. There was a parley, which ended in the tourist putting up his Kodak and the chief mounting his cayuse and going down the street at full speed and with an occasional whoop toward the reservation.

Forest Fires in California.

The loss to California by forest fires this year is estimated at $25,000,000 in the value of the timber destroyed, while the deforesting of the mountains works great harm to the agricultural interests. The responsibility for these terrible conflagrations is placed upon the sheep herders. The state's official foresters so report, and the mountaineers, who live in the high forests, affirm it. The herders drive their sheep on land that does not belong to them. They eat food that is not paid for, and requite the service by burning down the forests through which they pass and in which they water their stock. The press of the State is naturally making a loud demand that this wanton destruction of property shall be stopped.

Mark Twain and His Wife.

Mark Twain lives an idle, easy-going sort of existence nine months of the year. Unlike most authors, he works in summer and rests all the remainder of the year. His home at Hartford, Conn., is a handsome red Queen Anne villa the principal attraction of which is a large library on the first floor. Here Mark Twain may be found any day during the loafing season, sitting in a comfortable armchair, with his feet on the window-sill, partly hid by a cloud of tobacco smoke. Mrs. Clemens is a sweet, lovely, refined woman, but a serious drawback to her husband's happiness is the fact that she cannot appreciate his jokes.

CHAT ABOUT THE STYLES.

The tight coat sleeve is now a thing of the past.

All sleeves are now made loose above the elbow.

The basque waist is fast disappearing into oblivion.

Fur bands will be extensively used on cloth and gowns this year.

The fall of the small bonnet is predicted by fashion-makers.

The very newest Paris gowns have the skirt sewn on to the bodice.

For out-of-door toilets brown, gray, tan, and black gloves are the correct wear.

Panels are still a fashionable feature on most gowns for street and carriage wear.

Skirts are made longer in the back than formerly. They are shorter in front, however.

All waists have surplices, bretelles, plastrones, waist coats or revers of one kind or another.

Wraps are very short in the back and long, sometimes reaching the bottom of the skirt, in front.

The Carrick cape, with a flat boa or stole ending in square tabs a little above the knee, is very fashionable in London.

High collars are again in vogue in spite of the indications during the summer that a change to low-cut necks was to be made.

Braid is still very much used to decorate carriage and walking costumes. The heavy Russian braid seems to be preferred this season.

Tartan shoulder capes in triple folds with long square fronts, also triple folded, are prominent among utility short wraps for early fall wear.

The newest directoire capes are very full. They are cut round, the small center at the top fitting the neck and falling thence in folds around the shoulders.

Brilliantine will be a popular dress fabric the coming season. The new brands are silk finished and fall in lustrous folds, which quality renders them particularly suitable for straight skirts and directoire redingotes.

Pretty afternoon dresses of cashmere and camel's hair are made very effective by the use of velvet or heavily-repped ribbons, these being more favored for such decoration than moire or fancy ribbons of any sort.

Ladies who are of a sporting turn of mind and who handle the reins themselves are very partial to the triple Carrick or "four-in-hand" cape. The favorite color for it is a dark navy blue, and a turban or small toque of silk of the same color is worn with it.

Owing to the continued popularity of the blouse, belts are a necessary adjunct of the toilet. Some of the soft leathern belts are very tasteful, and there are some very pretty ones of silk, or fine silk stockinette, with silver clasps, and also of white or pale grey kid, with gold and silver clasps.

Among the grays, dove or quaker color is the most fashionable and the most becoming. It will combine well with Eiffel, pale rose, blue, water green, canary yellow, flamingo red, and other shades of bright and positive color, with cream, pure white, black, silver, gold, copper, or steel.

The distinguished characteristic of head coverings is lowness of crown and a corresponding depression of trimming for bonnets and largeness or shape and generosity of garniture for hats. The imported styles are not less captivating than usual, and some of the combinations of colors are most artistic.

Heliotrope will be the color of the winter in all the beautiful old tints and many new ones from lilac and dahlia through violet and reddish purple and Persian mauve. Next it in favor come yellow and pale yellowish flame. Red dyes from rose to damask and crimson, green, and pink run through high class millinery.

Oriental ideas are observable in many fall costumes. Persian, Bulgarian, Turkish, Servian, and Arabian embroideries are all the rage and are used on gowns of pure white and cream serge, on velvets and silk and woolen, and silk and wool mixtures of various colors and shades. A gown thus trimmed is converted into a wonder of richness, no matter how cheap and dull the oriental material is.

A graceful garment, quite new in style, to be worn over an accordion-plaited house dress, is made of velvet, lined with either a contrasting or harmonizing color. It has a zouave front and is sleeveless, and is finished with long directoire coat-tails at the back. It is called the directoire slip," and put on over a dainty gown a rich effect is given at moderate expense, for the slip can be made of five yards of velvet.

Rough cloths have entirely superseded the smooth for autumn and winter dresses. These cloths are shown in fancy designs, with plain to match. All sorts of odd figures and shapes have been introduced for designs, and at present most of these cloths are so expensive that they will be kept out of the general market. When they are imitated in cheap stuffs they will no longer find favor with those ladies who like unique styles.

THE HAND EMBROIDERER

In another column will be found a cut of the Hand Embroiderer that the Gazette offers as a premium. The little invention is very simple and works to perfection. Any lady can use it with a little practice, and the work produced is equal to the most careful hand work and ten times more rapid. Samples of the work may be seen either at the Gazette office or at the drug store of E. B. Heimstreet, directly opposite.

The Gazette wants a good lady canvasser in every town in the county. Liberal commission paid.
